JULY - SEPTEMBER 2014

28TH ANNUAL GOLF CLASSIC CONTINUES TRADITION OF SUCCESS

For the 28th year in a row, the McLennan Community College Foundation's Golf Classic continued to glean broad community support in order to raise funds to benefit the college.

This year's tournament took place October 1 at the beautiful Cottonwood Creek Golf Course. Though the night before brought torrential storms and high winds (that left much of Waco without power), the resulting cold front produced absolutely perfect weather for our 230 golfers.

Dozens of McLennan student athletes and volunteers were present to help support the event, which is the McLennan Community College Foundation's largest fundraiser each year. Net proceeds support student scholarships and capital needs on campus. We want to thank all of our volunteers who helped make the day run smoothly!

Among the exciting highlights of the tournament were hole-in-one contests, including the chance to win a Harley-Davidson motorcycle, sponsored by Harley-Davidson of Waco. While we did not have a golfer ride off into the sunset on a Harley, we did have a hole-in-one winner this year! Mr. Paul Leonard III of Fort Worth won a flat-screen television for his hole-in-one on Hole 4.

Raffle tickets and silent auction items, featuring items from dozens of local businesses, brought in several thousand dollars in ticket sales and auction bids.

THANK YOU, SUPPORTERS, FOR MAKING THE
MCLENNAN COMMUNITY COLLEGE FOUNDATION'S
28TH ANNUAL GOLF CLASSIC
A HUGE SUCCESS!

MCLENNAN RECEIVES HISTORICAL GIFT OF $1.8 MILLION

Earlier this year, the McLennan Community College Foundation received notification that it had been named as a benefactor of the estate of a former employee and his wife. Victor Jeffress, who died in September 2010, was director of library services at McLennan from 1969 to 1981, while his wife, Iris, was a librarian at Baylor University. The couple did not have any children, nor any close relatives in the Waco area. Upon the death of Iris Jeffress earlier this year, her will ordered that the couple's estate be split equally between McLennan Community College, Texas A&M University and Oklahoma State University.

This designation yielded the largest estate gift (to date) benefitting McLennan Community College — a record $1.8 million! The bequest will endow the Victor and Iris Jeffress Scholarship, which will benefit business, nursing and allied health students at McLennan. With this gift, the college expects to be able to give 90 new $1,000 scholarships per year.

MCLENNAN RECEIVES BIO-SCIENCES EQUIPMENT FROM LOCAL BANK

The McLennan Community College Foundation announced recently that the largest in-kind equipment donation in McLennan's history was received from the First National Bank of Central Texas. The equipment will support bio-science courses at McLennan.

Monte Hulse, chairman of the board of the First National Bank, made the announcement. "Our bank is very pleased to make this substantial equipment donation, which will assist the college to expand its offerings and class sizes in the bio-sciences," Hulse said. "These classes will allow McLennan to continue to educate local students to fill much-needed positions in our community. We have a long history of supporting local educational institutions. McLennan is a very valuable asset, and we are proud to assist them and strengthen Waco's role as part of the growing bio-science corridor in Texas."

McLennan's dean of workforce education, Dr. Ron Epps, and President of McLennan, Dr. Johnette McKown, were on hand to accept the equipment donation.

"Bio-science is a broad field encompassing applications in agriculture, industry and in health care issues, such as the current Ebola outbreak emergency," Epps said. "The FDA has just authorized emergency Ebola testing that requires the same type of equipment that the First National Bank of Central Texas is donating to McLennan. Molecular biology techniques are currently being used in the Ebola outbreak to identify the individuals who have been infected with this deadly virus. Instead of growing bacteria on a culture plate or viruses in a cell culture, we now use techniques that identify bacteria and viruses by their unique genetic material. This equipment, therefore, will be used to train the next generation of scientists."

Scholarship Night 2014 Celebrating Donors, Scholars and Alumni

Recognition of 13 major donors who together gave over $500,000 in new endowed scholarships or major gifts in the 2013-2014 fiscal year to the McLennan Community College Foundation was the highlight of the 14th Annual Scholarship, Alumni and Donor Recognition ceremony on September 9.

The event attracted a full house to celebrate donors and several hundred scholarship students who received McLennan Community College Foundation or Institutional Scholarships for the 2014-2015 academic year. In addition to these recognitions, the 2014 Highlander Alumni & Friends Association Distinguished Alumni and Distinguished Leader award winners were announced (see Page 5).

Guests were entertained with a special musical performance by McLennan student Lysie Gomez, who was accompanied by McLennan professor of music Dr. Andrew Hudson. This year's very distinguished speaker was Judge Scott Felton (pictured above), who encouraged the scholarship students to excel in their studies and to consider making Waco their home after graduation. We want to thank Judge Felton again for speaking at this year's event.

ALUMNI and FRIENDS ASSOCIATION
McLennan Community College • Waco, Texas

2014 DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI & DISTINGUISHED LEADER

Rod Aydelotte of Waco was named the 2014 Highlander Alumni & Friends Distinguished Alumnus at the 14th Annual Scholarship, Donor and Alumni Recognition Ceremony on September 9.

Aydelotte began his higher education at McLennan Community College and graduated with his associate degree in 1974. He then went to Baylor University, where he obtained his Bachelor of Arts in Photojournalism in 1977.

Aydelotte has worked as the chief photographer for the Trib for many years, covering the more difficult key moments in our county's history: the Lake Waco murders, the Branch Davidian stand-off and the recent explosion of the West, Texas fertilizer plant. He has had the joy to cover Waco's highest moments: visits from foreign dignitaries like British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Bishop Desmond Tutu, along with United States Presidents Ford, Carter, Reagan, Clinton, the Bushes and Obama. He has also performed contract work with the Associated Press, New York Times, Washington Post and local institutions like Baylor and McLennan. He has brought distinction to the college and our entire community through his career's work. His nominator, Henry Apperson, writes "there is not one other person in town better versed in such a broad spectrum of Waco and Central Texas history," and Paula Unger, McLennan sociology professor, simply describes him as "Waco's photographer."

Luis Terceiro was also recognized in the recognition ceremony, earning the award for 2014 Highlander Alumni & Friends Distinguished Leader. Luis, originally from Brazil, came to McLennan Community College in 2010. According to his nominator, Dustie Hamilton, he wasted no time becoming involved on campus. "He took every opportunity to be engaged in all facets of the college and has served as a student worker, a Student Ambassador and even a temporary employee of the college," said Hamilton.

He achieved scholastically to earn the honor of Presidential Scholar and held leadership positions in the Phi Theta Kappa honors society and the Nursing Student Association. In addition to these achievements, he took time to give back to the community by volunteering at Fuzzy Friends Animal Shelter and a local oncology unit. Luis is now a Registered Nurse in the Dallas/Fort Worth area.

FOUNDATION ANNOUNCES FIRST "DAY OF GIVING"

The McLennan Community College Foundation knows that your holiday and year-end to-do lists are growing day by day. To combat the end-of-year giving rush, the Foundation announces its first Day of Giving, to be held on December 2, 2014. This year, December 2 is recognized as #GivingTuesday, a day that serves to inspire personal personal philanthropy and encourages bigger, better and smarter charitable giving during the holiday season.

On December 2, the Foundation hopes to raise $5,000 in the span of 24 hours to initiate a special McLennan Community College 50th Anniversary Scholarship. The idea is simple – give your annual gift early on December 2, and it will count toward the Day of Giving goal. Donations can be made by EFT, phone, online, mail (must be postmarked by December 2) and in person at MCC Foundation's office (located at 1728 Powell). Please consider helping us achieve this goal – there is strength in numbers, and we will be blessed to be remembered in your philanthropic giving this year!

Arts Notes

In 2009, the McLennan Community College Foundation board of directors voted to raise almost $1 million to purchase 27 new Steinway pianos, thus earning McLennan the prestigious title of "All-Steinway School." Since then, the MCC Foundation has partnered with the Visual & Performing Arts department to host an annual Steinway Series, a series of concerts featuring talented musicians with the Steinway pianos.

On September 18, the 2014-2015 Steinway Series began with an outstanding performance by McLennan alumna Alison Lampert. Alison is a Waco native and has made the flute her passion since the sixth grade. Miss Lampert earned her associate degree from McLennan and her Bachelor of Music Education and Master of Music Education from Baylor University. Miss Lampert, pictured below with her accompanist Dr. Andrew Hudson, wowed a generous crowd in the Ball Performing Arts Center, where plaques recognize McLennan Community College's Premier All-Steinway donors. We continue to thank all of the generous donors to the All-Steinway Campaign for their enrichment of Waco's arts community.

The Steinway Series will resume in January with two separate concerts – January 8 featuring McLennan's own Donnie Balmos and Gail G. Wade and January 15 featuring McLennan alumnus Richard G. Leonberger.

The McLennan Community College Foundation and McLennan Community College invite you and your family to attend the 2015 spring Steinway concerts

MCLENNAN FACULTY DR. APRIL ANDREAS RECEIVES 2014-2015 PIPER NOMINATION

McLennan has the greatest staff, faculty and administration anywhere. Among us are many faculty recognized for their teaching excellence and one such recognition is the Minnie Stevens Piper nominee for Outstanding Instructor. Dr. April Andreas (pictured right with MCC Foundation Executive Director Harry Harelik) was honored as the 2014-2015 McLennan Community College Piper Nominee at this year's staff and faculty convocation on August 18.

Dr. Andreas received her bachelor's degree in mathematics with minors in physics, computer science and art history and her master's in mathematics from Southern Methodist University. She then went on to receive a Doctorate in Systems and Industrial Engineering from the University of Arizona. She was an adjunct professor for Collin County and McLennan Community College and an instructor and honors program coordinator at SMU, as well, before becoming an associate professor here at McLennan five years ago. Prior to her entry into the education profession, she was an engineer at 4Frontier Corporation and at Raytheon. She has authored a host of professional publications and articles as well as having contributed to or authoring several books. She was also governor of area 25 Toastmasters Int'l and has a Distinguished Toastmaster Certification.

Since McLennan was lucky enough to get her, she has helped to build an incredible engineering department that has continued to expand even as overall college enrollment has dropped. McLennan engineering students find when they transfer to four-year colleges that they well surpass the education and abilities of other engineering students in their transfer colleges.

In her teaching philosophy she writes: "One of my students recently told me something that suddenly made sense to me: "The reason your classes work is we trust you." She writes further, "My entire teaching philosophy is based on trust. I realized I trusted my students, too. I have absolutely no shame in the classroom. If wearing my hair in pigtails, hopping on one foot and singing the alphabet backwards would help explain a particular topic in Dynamics, I would do it. While I fully expect my students to roll their eyes, I also trust them to try...and give it a shot. I can't imagine doing anything else with my life. Teaching is a fundamentally awesome experience."

The MCC Foundation recognizes Dr. Andreas for this prestigious nomination and her many achievements.

YOU CAN LEAVE A LEGACY

An article from McLennan Community College Foundation Executive Director Harry Harelik

You'll read in this newsletter about the magnificent estate bequest of Iris Jeffress and her husband, Victor, a former McLennan Community College library director, that will fund many future McLennan Community College Foundation scholarships. This will be a gift to this community and its students in perpetuity...forever. What a legacy to local higher education the Jeffresses have left. But we all can leave a legacy, be it small or large, by remembering a local not for profit organization in our last will and testament.

Such is the premise of the Waco Foundation's new initiative, call "TOW" or Transfer of Wealth. This initiative is based on the projection that if every person in McLennan County left even 5% of his or her estate to a local not for profit entity, then millions of dollars could be passed, ensuring not only the financial health of our not for profit community but also their ability to continue supporting the community in so many extensive ways....from early childhood education to feeding the hungry to housing the homeless to animal care and safety, from beautification to stopping bullying and from financial literacy to stopping family abuse. Whatever a person's passion might be in helping others, it can be supported by bequests through a last will and testament.

Five percent of an estate really can have a major impact on the future of our community. And that 5% would really not have a serious harmful impact on a person's family. On a small estate of $50,000, 5% would mean $2,500 would go to charity. On a large estate of $2 million, $100,000 would go to charity. Family heirs in either case would not suffer, but to the not for profit to which the bequest is given, a major positive impact would be seen.

And the way in which the bequest or "planned gift" is made can vary according to the wishes of the individual. A simple directive to gift a percentage of the estate to the charity after all estate expenses are paid is simple and efficient. By using a "percentage" of the distributable estate, the amount might vary as estate assets rise and fall in value, thereby avoiding a hardship sometimes created when a given set amount is planned but the estate assets fall in value before or after death.

Other ways of accomplishing the "TOW" might be through a charitable gift annuity (reserving income for a donor's life with the charity getting or sharing in the remainder at a person's death), or through naming the charity as a partial or full beneficiary of a life insurance policy or a retirement plan. It could even be accomplished by bequeathing a particular item of value (such as a rare painting to a not for profit museum or a piece of antique furniture to an historic home). Donors, of course, would want to confer with their charity of choice to be sure the charity can accept an "in kind" gift.

Still another way of way of making the transfer would be to establish a donor advised fund with our local Waco Foundation which would then distribute corpus or income from the fund to a donor's charities of choice after the donor's death. Donations made prior to death may be potentially income tax deductible on the donor's income tax return. Bequests made at death may be estate tax deductible if the estate is large enough to be estate taxable.

Anyone can participate in the local transfer of wealth. The gift does not have to be on the level of the Jeffress gift to make a meaningful impact on the charity and the surrounding community. And just think of how this transfer of wealth might be magnified if EVERYONE resolved to do it. The opportunities to honor and improve our community and county are boundless....even long after we have passed from this earth. Think about it. Talk to your attorney or CPA about it. Then do it!

SCIENCE AT MCLENNAN COMMUNITY COLLEGE

McLennan professor Elaine Fagner and volunteers traveled to West Fest on July 30 to offer a unique way to support the McLennan Community College Foundation — selling geological arches to benefit the Geology Field Course Fund! The booth featured arches of various shapes and sizes that were sold to raise money for the Geology Field Course Fund. To learn more about this fund, or to support Geology at McLennan, please contact Harry Harelik (hharelik@mcclennan.edu).

Did you know that McLennan has an engineering department? Thanks to the hard work of Dr. April Andreas (see Page 8) and several McLennan faculty members, the Associate of Science with a Field of Study in Engineering program has grown significantly to meet STEM demands in Central Texas.

Students like Michael Shepard (pictured right) are able to take the first two years of engineering courses and related mathematics/science courses at McLennan. The program also offers undergraduate research opportunities to provide hands-on experience to students. To learn more about the program, please contact Dr. April Andreas (aandreas@mcclennan.edu).
